M. PASTERU has special and personal facilities for investigating the cholera now. He has it himself, in a mild form.

PINCHING is about to be an effective and harmless beautifier of the complexion. There is an exception to every rule, and the pinch of poverty is the exception to this one.

M. PASTERU, the celebrated explorer and discoverer in the field of medicine, knows more about cholera today than he ever knew before. He is convinced from a mild attack of the genuine Asiatic article.

It will cost $20 to get a seat to see John L. Sullivan knock Cribb out, and it is not sure that Sullivan can do it. Considerable knocking will be done, whoever succeeds.

In Tokio, Japan, there are more than eight hundred bathtubs, in which a bath can be had for one cent. This is the cheapest kind of washing for people.

AARON STRICKLAND, an Indiana man, was bitten by a copperhead snake, and was knocked within an hour. Aaron was drunk, and it is supposed the liquor in his system poisoned the snake.

The public libraries of all Europe contain 21,000,000 volumes, while America's free libraries have 50,000,000. This is the best refutation that Europe is more of a literary country than ours.

CHROMATOPOTUOISIS is the medical term for color blindness, and statistics show that men are much more chromatoptically inclined than women. A man invariably succumbs to hopeless chromatoptopotuosis when he tries to match ribbon.

A PAPER in New Jersey the other day printed an account of the discovery of the "lifeless corpse of an unknown dead man." For a sample of murdering the "King's English" this takes the bakery.

CAPT. ALVIN, HALL of Deering Me., has a pair of mittens made from his wife's hair. He probably derives a sort of second-hand pleasure from the possibly pulling those mittens on and off.

MERELY because a Des Moines jailer has been charging the city at the rate of 10 meals per day for the board of prisoners, he is accused of dishonesty and threatened with prosecution. Genius is seldom properly appreciated in this cold calculating world of ours.

A FREEMAN in Lynn, having been stabbed in the eye with an umbrella making a wound three inches deep, it would seem that those useful articles should hereafter be included in the ordinances which prohibit the carrying of dangerous weapons.

THERE is a subdued and touching pathos in the valedictory of a Kansas editor, who winds up the affairs of the Lane County Farm as follows: "With malice toward none and charity for all, I retire from the publication of this paper, and am ready for a soft job in the harvest field."

A WRITER commenting upon the recent proceedings at the several political conventions remarks that there is a movement among women toward greater participation in politics. But it is not a patching to the movement among women toward the military stores just before Easter.

HENRY WARD BEECHER's widow says the great Brooklyn preacher wrote but one poem and refused to let Robert Bonner print it in the Ledger in spite of an offer of $5,000 for it. It was written in Beecher's college days at Amherst, the good lady says, and contained about as much poetry as there is in "Jack and Jill."

NATURE is evidently disposed to assist in retarding the flow of gold from the United States to Europe. Cholera, volcanic eruptions and avalanches must soon have their effect in checking the summer exodus of tourists and causing tearful birds who have already reached the continent to wing their way homeward.

BARONESS BURBETT COTTIS is now returning to the friendship of Queen Victoria. At one time the relations existing between majesty and lady Burbett-Cottis were so strained that she was able to please many thousands who preferred her work to that of more pretensions artists.

PARTIES concerned are beginning to squirm a little over the question of paying the bill likely to result from the killing of the Pinkertons at Homestead. An attempt is being made to show that the Pinkertons were deceived as to the nature of the business in which they were expected to engage. They must have thought they were taking guns along to assist in a belated Fourth of July celebration.

The death of Kate Castleton will cause genuine regret among her many admirers. She made a great sensation when she first came to this country some years ago with some very pretty songs and bewitching manners. Her sphere was not a very exalted one from a purely artistic standpoint, but she was able to please many thousands who preferred her work to that of more pretensions artists.

Two suffragers and death, of Cyrus W. Fiedt took a cold when he was in the great Atlantic cable has flashed the achievement by which the continents have been brought together. While Morse and others conceived the enterprise, it was the great merchant who thought of the cable as a commercial undertaking, and it was he who, after failure, succeeded in carrying out the mighty undertaking.

A LULU'S DEED

Horrible Work of a Madman Who Imagined Himself the Saviour.

He Runs Amuck Through the Streets of Lake City.

LAKE CITY, Minn., Special, July 27.—Marshal R. Rogers received a fatal wound in the forehead this morning from the discharge of a revolver from the hands of Daniel Busch, a fanatic, who was also wounded, perhaps mortally.

Busch is the son of a farmer living in this vicinity. He is twenty-eight years old, and several years ago was an inmate for some time of the Rochester insane asylum. He has been working for several weeks on East street, near Lake, having given up the farm. Yesterday he applied at the Graphic-Sentinel office to have some posters printed announcing the coming of the "Saviour." When asked if he had seen that personage recently he answered, "I am he." That evening he appeared at the entrance of the police house, where a number of people were gathered to hear the Schubert Symphony club, and endeavored to prevent several from entering, telling them that Christ had come to do with the performance, and if they were for him they certainly should go away. That he might not further annoy them, he attempted to enter the police house, but was stopped by Marshal Rogers in the city prison. As Busch seemed this morning to have recovered from his excitement, he was taken to the police house, where he was held in a room in the hotel. The fanatic took a revolver from his vest, then went to a hardware store and selected another which was more powerful. He then returned to the police house, where he was held, and the proprietor forbade the sale. Without regard to ownership, however, Busch left the store with the new revolver and a box of cartridges.

THE Grand Jury Chamber of Commerce committee which visited St. Paul recently to confer with the officials of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific in regard to securing lower freight rates on coal to Grand Forks, are promised a definite answer in 30 days. They are confident that a better rate will be granted.

FRANK Thaven, who has been selling and disposing of the National Bank at Fargo, has disappeared with $800 of the bank funds. He has been trusted with large sums of money to deliver and the bank is now in a state of alarm.

M. PASTERU has special and personal facilities for investigating the cholera now. He has it himself, in a mild form.

PINCHING is said to be an effective and harmless beautifier of the complexion. There is an exception to every rule, and the pinch of poverty is the exception to this one.

M. PASTERU, the celebrated explorer and discoverer in the field of medicine, knows more about cholera today than he ever knew before. He is conversant from a mild attack of the genuine Asiatic Article.

It will cost $20 to get a seat to see John L. Sullivan knock Corbett out, and it is not sure that Sullivan can do it. Considerable knocking will be done, whoever succeeds.

Is Tokio, Japan, there are more than eight hundred bathhouses, in which a bath can be had for one cent. This is the cheapest kind of washing for people.

AARON STRICKLAND, an Indiana man, was bitten by a copperhead snake, and the snake died within half an hour. Aaron was drunk, and it is supposed the liquor in his system poisoned the snake.

The public libraries of all Europe contain 21,000,000 volumes, while America's free libraries have 50,000,000. This is the best return that could be given to the pet theory that Europe is more of a literary country than ours.

CHEOMATOPOLITICUS is the medical term for color blindness, and statistics show that men are much more chromotopologically inclined than women. A man invariably succumbs to hopeless chromotopopseudopititude when he tries to match ribbon.

A PAPER in New Jersey the other day printed an account of the discovery of "the lifeless corpse of an unknown dead man." For a sample of murdering the "King's English" this takes the bakery.

CAPT. ALVIN HALL of Deering Me, has a pair of mittens made from his wife's hair. He probably derives a sort of second-hand pleasure from viciously pulling those mittens on and off.

MERLEY is changing the city at the rate of 16 meals per day for the board of prisoners, he is accused of dishonesty and threatened with prosecution. Genius is seldom properly appreciated in this cold calculating world of ours.

A FRENCHMAN in Lynn, having been stabbed in the eye with an umbrella, making a wound three inches deep, it would seem that those useful articles should hereafter be included in the ordinances which prohibit the carrying of dangerous weapons.

There is a sublimed and touching picture in the vocabulary of a Kansas editor, who winds up the affairs of the Lane County Farmer as follows: "With malice toward none and charity for all, I retire from the publication of this paper, and am ready for a soft job in the harvest field."

A WRITER commenting upon the recent proceedings at the several political conventions remarks that there is a movement among women toward greater participation in politics. But it is not a patching to the movement among women toward the millinery stores just before Easter.

HENRY WARD BEECHER's widow says the great Brooklyn preacher was but one poem and reduced to it. Robert Bonner print it in the Ledger in spite of an offer of $5,000 for it. It was written in Beecher's college days at Amherst, the good lady says, and contained about as much poetry as there is in "Jack and Jill."

NATURE is evidently disposed to assist in retarding the flow of gold from the United States to Europe. Cholera, volcanic eruptions and avalanches must soon have their effect in checking the summer exodus of tourists and causing the early birds who have already reached the continent to wing their way homeward.

BARONESS BURDET COUTTS is now restored to the friendship of Queen Victoria. At one time the relations existing between her majesty and Lady Burdet-Coutts were extremely cordial, but at the time of the lady's marriage they became somewhat strained, as the queen strongly disapproved of the step.

PARSONS, concerned are beginning to squirm a little over the question of paying the bill likely to result from the killing of the Pinkertons at Homestead. An attempt is being made to show that the Pinkertons at Homestead were not in the line of duty.

THE death of Kate Castleton will cause genuine regret among her many admirers. She made a great sensation when she first came to this country some years ago with some very pretty songs and bewitching manners. Her death was not a very extraordinary one from a purely artistic standpoint, but she was able to please many thousands who preferred her work to that of more pretentious artists.

The sufferings and death of Cyrus W. Field touch a chord wherever the great Atlantic cable has flashed the news. His name is linked with the achievement by which the continents have been brought together. While Morse and others conceived the enterprise, it was the great merchant who thought of the cable as a commercial undertaking, and it was he who, after failure, succeeded in carrying out the mighty undertaking.

A LAMENT.
O world! O life! O time!
On whose last steps I climb
Trembling at that where I had stood When will return the glory of your
No more O nevermore!
Out of the day and night
A joy has taken flight;
Fresh spring, and summer, and winter
Move my faint heart with grief, but with
No more O nevermore!
—By Percy B. Shelley.

NEIGHBORLY.
"How charming it would be," said she—
They smiled and selected places—
In a craned veranda's space—
"Fortune would the means bestow
That we might not our trunks and go
Unto a watering place!"
"The better wish than that," he said,
Swallowing his newly shined hair—
"I have no next visit to make—
'Tis that some fairy might transform Into some of ours so parched and warm,
And to a watering place!"
"How quick to some fulfillment founts!"
That she might have a little more
Did spray his garden space,
And shot a fervent earnest heart
That he might have a little more Unto a watering place."
—From the Boston Courier.

CONSTANCY REWARDED.
N. Heilandtown of Bandon, Ireland, dwelt a poor mechanic
named Moriarty.
His daughter and child Eve-
leen, though fairly dressed, was considered a beauty. She had a kind word and a winning smile for all, and was ever ready to share her scanty means with the starving pensioners who resided in the hall.
So much loveliness did not "blush unseen," and numerous were the aspirants for the hand of the fair Eveleen, who had just completed her eighteenth year.
To her many admirers Eveleen played the deaf adder. One alone she favored—young Rory O'Keefe, the village carpenter, a highly industrious and well educated young man, who was approved by her parents.
Rory had a malicious rival in Donald McCarthy, who was desperately in love with Eveleen, but who could never succeed in gaining even a smile from her.
Donald was of a sour, vindictive disposition, which gave him the sobriquet of the "bodach."
Ireland was at that time steeped in poverty and wretchedness. The injustice and misrule of England had nearly exterminated the people, had imprisoned and helped to break the heart of the great laborer; Daniel O'Connell was dead.
By working hard all the year round,
living on potatoes, the poor Irish peasant could barely ward off starvation.
Should he make improvements on the barren soil, his rent would be immediately raised by a cruel landlord, without giving compensation for his improvements.
Unfortunate Ireland was in a deplorable
state, as the ill-starred rebellion of 1848 had made her condition almost hopeless.
For years after this rebellion, Government officials were very vigilant in the Green Isle, ever on the watch for "seditious" actions on the part of Ireland's patriots.
About the close of February, 1869,
it was rumored that the Prince of Wales, who was then in the city,
Queen Victoria, by carrying on a serious flirtation in her own household.
The Queen, in order to remove the young prince from temptation, ordered him to the private tutor, Mr.
Gibbs, to make the tour of Ireland.
Every one in Bandon was interested,
wondering if the prince would visit
their town.
In the meantime a numerous picnic
party from Bandon and Timoleague arrived at Blarney Castle. Among them were the young ladies, Miss
Gibbs, to make the tour of Ireland.
Every one in Bandon was interested,
wondering if the prince would visit
their town.
Lord Bandon's son, accompanied by a very distinguished-looking young man, entered the grounds, the former leaving for a few minutes to get the keys of the castle from "Mrs. Biddy Cotton," the landlady.
No sooner had he disappeared than an infuriated bull, that had broken loose, darted across the stranger's path, and, crossing the river, dashed the welkin ring with his bellows.
The cowardly Donald, who was drunk, climbed a tree, while Rory, quick as lightning, ran between the ragged animal and the terrified youth,
and opening suddenly a large umbrella, gave the bull a surprise, and the animal, frightened, fled.
It was laughable to see the terror on the face of the animal, who turned and fled precipitately.
Later on, when Eveleen, her parents, and several others, approached. They were surprised to see the strange young gentleman advance, and taking Rory's hand, he said:
"Ten thousand thanks, my brave deliverer! Do you know who I am?"
"You are a brother, man!" replied
Rory.
"I am proud of such a brother, although I am the Prince of Wales," said the stranger. "Is there no way in which I can assist the poor invalid lady?"
"Oh, your Royal Highness! I should blush to think of accepting a reward for what was both a duty and a pleasure," answered Rory.
The prince was returned, and drawing a rich diamond from his finger, he forced its acceptance on his young champion, saying:
"I am going to visit the Lakes of Killarney; but will be in Cork, at the Imperial Hotel, in a week or ten days. Should you or any friend of yours be so kind as to accompany the lady's conversion from paganism."
The "People's Ball," under the patronage of Lady Bandon, was a great success. It occurred during Lent, but a special license was given for the celebration, owing to the glorious occasion.
The ball came off in the Court House, and was truly a beautiful picture put in motion; its coloring being gray and innocent pleasure being the special charm of the scene.
"It is not sufficient," says Montesquieu, "to present a multitude of objects; they must be presented with order."

dressed in green (the National color), had condescended to mingle with the daughters of poor artisans.
Eveleen was dressed in white and green, and was the most lovely girl in the hall-room; Rory compelled her to wear the sparkling diamond ring, the gift of the Prince of Wales.
As she gyrated with her lover, in the many periods of the waltz, she declared it to be the happiest time of her life.
The dance being concluded, Rory was informed that a gentleman, who desired to speak to him on some very important business, was waiting for him down stairs.
Exeving himself to Eveleen, saying he would return in a few minutes, he quickly descended to the street door, where a well-dressed, gentlemanly person waited him in a very affable manner, and asked him some very commonplace questions concerning the Royal cause, and the lady, who had been conversing until they arrived at the street corner, which was quite deserted, and where a carriage stood waiting for him.
Suddenly two three-looking men sprang out of the vehicle, and seizing Rory, gagged him, and placed handcuffs on his wrists, crying out:
"Take care, you are arrested!"
The name, for high treason against Her Majesty's Government! You are the secretary of the Young Ireland Club," said the man, who was wearing a you sentence at the Cork Assizes tomorrow!"
Soon Rory and his captors were taken to Cork, where they arrived in a few hours, and Eveleen's unfortunate lover was lodged in jail.
As Rory could not disprove the ac-cussions made and sworn to against him by the wicked, but not unfriendly, of his, he was quickly condemned to penal servitude for life, and hurried off to Liverpool, where a transport was waiting to take him and the other convicts to Australia.
He was not allowed to communicate with his friends, as a rescue was feared. Rory being a prime favorite with the people.
On returning home from the jail,
Eveleen and her friends were surprised to find no trace of her lover; and several days elapsed before the story of his transportation reached them.
Words cannot betray the agony of Eveleen, who, day after day, breaking away her tears as she glanced at the diamond-ring on her finger, she remembered the kind promise of the Prince to befriend Rory or any friend of his.
Imploping her mother to accompany her, they both at once set out for Cork, where on arriving at the Imperial Hotel, they were met by a gentleman, who, passing to the Prince of Wales, he was quickly returned from the Lakes of Killarney.
The prince, who granted Eveleen and her mother an audience, and was deeply concerned to hear the sad news of the brave "bull-fighter," as he called Rory.
"I pledge you my honor, as an English gentleman, that I will liberate your friend if even I have to make a voyage to Australia in order to accomplish it," said the prince.
"May Heaven reward your Royal Highness!" cried both women, sobbing with pure gratitude.
As Eveleen's mother was waiting for a carriage, Mrs. Cotton, a generous and enterprising Scotch lady, who was proprietress of the hotel, appeared, and offered to accompany them to the Prince of Wales, who was waiting for them in the hall.
The Prince of Wales, who was waiting for them in the hall, was waiting for them in the hall.

A SILVER PLATED CAT.
An Artistic Foat Performed by Lightning in a Vermont Village.
A remarkable freak of lightning occurred some time ago near the small village of New Salem, Vt., at the foot of the Hildeberg Mountains. Arent
S. Vandyck occupies an old mansion, in the parlor of which hung a collection of Revolutionary swords, one of which was heavily plated with silver. On the night in question a terrific thunder storm burst, one particularly heavy clap struck every one in the house.
Quickly recovering the family hastened to see what damage had been done. Suddenly the youngest Vandyck pointed to an old-fashioned sofa.
There lay what seemed to be a silver cat, curled up as comfortable as could be. Each glancing at it, the separate and distinct, and each silver blade of the whisks described as graceful a curve as if it flew.
The cat, which lay on the wall
just above the sofa, father and son remarked that the plated sword had been stripped of all its silver, the blade of the sword being now silver-plated and the hilt had gone altogether.
The cat had been electro-plated by lightning. A round hole in the window pane, about the size of a hen's egg, showed where the lightning had entered. There was a charred crack showing the path of the lightning as it made its way to the sword, down which it passed to the sofa, carrying with it the fused silver, which was scientifically deposited on that magnetic animal, the cat.
The young Vandyck, who was instantly killed, and therefore, remained in the position in which the lightning found him peacefully sleeping. It is thought that the lightning, which struck the wall, and the silver-plated sword, and the cat, was the same lightning.

A graphic and true description will be given of one of the most extraordinary places on the face of the earth. We refer to the terrible prison of the Siberian coast, in a part of the track of Navigation. The story will be intensely interesting.

Blueberry Veterans.

The St. Paul Globe says: The members of the state executive and the state militia who participated in quelling the uprising of the Indians at Brainerd, July 25, 1872, held a reunion at the Metropolitan hotel, under the name of the reunion of the Blueberry war. The occasion was the lynching of two half-breeds, who had murdered Mary McArthur. The half-breeds were hung to a limb of a pine tree in the streets of Brainerd which was then a frontier town. The Indians threatened an uprising to avenge the death of the half-breed. The sheriff of Crow Wing county appealed to Gov. Austin for protection, and he ordered Companies A, B and D of the state guards to the rescue. The reunion last night was gotten up for the participants in the event, which happily resulted in no fighting. There was a goodly company gathered to participate in the reunion. The dining room at the Metropolitan was decorated with flowers and plants, the first regiment flag and a stand of muskets on the wall. One or two of the gray uniforms used at that time also were exhibited. An appetizing menu was served, while the ex-soldiers recounted incidents of the past twenty years or told of the events of the war that was named, as Lieut. Cochran said, by the newspaper reporters. He said no Indians were seen by the guards, except a few squaws, who came into the town to sell blueberries. He regretted that he had not earned the right to wear the blue or the bronze button, but was proud of his experience in the scenes of camp life, and how he had to send orders to the dance houses, and how the guard house was frequently emptied by means of a key to the back door that one of the soldiers kept ready to release the men placed therein. He spoke of the tame skunk that was chained to a tent pole and of other incidents of the camp. A number of pictures were exhibited, among them a photograph of the two half-breeds hanging to a pine tree in the street of Brainerd.

Drowned White Bathing.

News was brought into the city on Monday morning that Jack Donahue had been drowned in Hubert lake on Sunday afternoon but that his body had not been recovered. Coroner Bain was requested to go to the scene by A. Lessard, for whom the victim had been working in a tie camp, and after several hours dragging his body was found at the bottom of the lake in about fifteen feet of water. An inquest was not necessary, and the body was brought into the city and buried. It seems that on Sunday afternoon Donahue told some of his fellow workers that he was going to the lake for a bath and solicited them to go along but owing to the extreme heat they declined and he went alone. As he did not return a search was made for him but nothing could be found excepting his clothing which was on a log near the water. He was 30 years of age, unmarried, and his relatives live somewhere in Michigan.

The Deadly Gun.

On Monday forenoon Matt Andrews, an 11-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Andrews, fatally shot himself while handling a 22-calibre revolver. Medical assistance was immediately called but an examination showed that the lad had a very slim chance of recovering from the wound which was in the abdomen, the ball having passed nearly through his body. Everything possible was done but he died at nine o'clock the same evening. The funeral was held yesterday morning from the Catholic church, Rev. Father Lynch officiating.

Is It Leopold Pepin?

Somewhat of a sensation was caused here this morning by the announcement that one of the log-scooters at work on the river for the Pine Tree Lumber company had found the body of a boy in a badly decomposed condition, in the water. A visit to the scene showed that the report was exaggerated as all that had been found was a bunch of hair and a bone which might have come from the arm of a boy. Dr. Fortier has gone up to examine the find, as it may be that the decomposed mass is the remains of the 8-year-old boy of Brainerd, named Leopold Pepin, son of Paul Pepin, who was drowned in the Mississippi at that place Sunday, May 15.—Little Falls Transcript

Fire in a Livery Barn.

The department was called out on Tuesday noon by an alarm turned in from Chas. Moore's livery stable in the Gray building on Laurel street. The origin of the fire was unknown and when discovered by Mr. Mooers was flaming up the chute near the front end of the stable to the loft which was filled with hay and by the time water was turned on the entire upper story was a mass of flames inside and it looked as though the building must be destroyed. But good work by the firemen soon began to tell and it was put out with no damage to the lower part of the building excepting a thorough drenching. Everything was removed from the stable and Mr. Mooers' loss will be slight, but the building was damaged to quite an extent which was covered by insurance.

Mrs. Sam. Parker and children left Wednesday evening for Sharon, Wis., where they will visit during the coming month.

What promises to be one of the best attractions of the season will be given at the opera house next Thursday evening. Lincoln J. Carter's magnificent scenic production, the "Fast Mail." This is said to be a melodrama of more than ordinary merit while the scenic and mechanical effects equal anything that has ever been given in this city. There is a representation of an engine room on a Mississippi steamer, showing the furnace under the boilers in active operation. A realistic train of cars shoots across the stage with wonderful effect. The scene representing the Niagara Falls is said to challenge criticism and beggars description. The moonlight on the Falls, and the roaring of the plunging waters, the mist arising from the seething current make the scene as realistic as one as it would be possible to make it. The play has an absorbing plot and the lines are all strong.

McElroy Fights Griffin.

There was quite a crowd at the opera house Saturday evening to witness the sparring match between Jim McElroy, of Brainerd, and Jimmy Griffin, of St. Paul. Both men had been in the city during the week and considerable interest had been aroused among their admirers. To work the crowd up to the proper pitch and give them their money's worth several sets of were had between some of the local boxers, would-be and otherwise. A go between Gene Hamlin and Billy Campbell started the ball a rolling and contests between Frank Hood and Arcule Burke, Jas. Connors and Serraphim Roy and Alfred Brown and George Hamlin. Some of them were very lively and produced heaps of fun for the audience, the men on the stage seeming to enjoy it fully as much as anybody else.

The main interest, of course, was centered in the contest between McElroy and Griffin, which was called by Twombly at 10:15. He stated that it would be under the Revised Marquis of Queensbury rules, would be six rounds, and the gloves being produced were examined by chief Roy and found to be 8 ounces and all right as regards weight. Ed. Hirt, of St. Cloud, was behind Griffin while W. A. Twombly acted as second for McElroy. At the end of the sixth round the referee declared the contest a draw and as both men expressed themselves as satisfied the crowd should be. All in all, it was a pretty exhibition sparring match, with none of the usual brutal accompaniments.—Little Falls Transcript

The Calhoun Opera company will appear at the opera house on Wednesday evening, August 3d, and the News says:

The Calhoun Opera company played "Said Pasha" for the third time at the Lyceum last evening to an enthusiastic audience, and a large one, considering that already two performances of the same piece have been given. The company has caught the popular heart, sure enough.

Ask for the new drink, "The Professor's Soda," for headaches and mental exertion. Dispensed with the latest, "Artesian Soda Water." Johnson's Pharmacy.

Miss Helen Crocker wishes those who desire lessons in elocution to call, during the first week in August, at the residence of O. M. Pond's, corner of Fifth and Kingwood streets.

The bicycle riders who advertised to show on Sunday at the fair grounds were compelled to change their date to Saturday owing to public sentiment. Brainerd is getting to be quite a moral town.

Mr. G. W. Bissar and Miss Annie Thiery were married on Wednesday, July 27, by Rev. Father Lynch. Mr. and Mrs. Bissar are spending their honeymoon at Wadena and on their return will make Brainerd their home.

Mrs. Fannie L. Ames, of Minneapolis, state organizer for W. C. T. U., will lecture in the Baptist church, of this city, on the evening of August 3d. All are cordially invited. No admission fee. A collection will be taken.

In things theatrical Brainerd is getting to be a hummer. To-day's arrival of two distinguished gentlemen, Mr. J. Wesley Rosenquest, proprietor of two large New York theatres, and Mr. Joseph Arthur, the author of "Blue Jeans" and "Still Alarm." These gentlemen came from New York to have an opportunity of witnessing a performance of Blue Jeans given in one of the "one night stands." After being shown the stage at the opera house they assured Manager Alexander that Blue Jeans can and will be given in its entirety on Monday next. The gentlemen will spend the next few days in fishing and visiting the various lake resorts in this vicinity until the arrival of the company.

A Pure Baking Powder.

A baking powder that can be depended upon to be free from lime and alum is a desideratum in these days of adulterated food. So far as can be judged from the official reports, the "Royal" seems to be the only yet found by chemical analyses to be entirely without one or the other of these substances, and absolutely pure. This, it is shown, results from the exclusive use by its manufacturers of cream of tartar specially refined and prepared by patent processes which totally remove all impurities. The cost of this chemically pure cream of tartar is much greater than any other, and it is used in no baking powder except the "Royal," the manufacturers of which control the patents under which it is refined.

Dr. Edward G. Love, formerly analytical chemist for the U. S. Government, who made the analyses for the New York State Board of Health in their investigation of baking powders, and whose intimate knowledge of the ingredients of all those sold in this market enables him to speak authoritatively, says of the purity, wholesomeness and superior quality of the "Royal":

Prof. Love's tests, and the recent official tests by both the United States and Canadian Governments, show the Royal Baking Powder to be superior to all others in strength and leavening power. It is not only the most economical in use, but makes the purest, finest flavored and most wholesome food.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Or C. H. PAINE & Co., Brainerd.

The most startling scene ever put on the American stage is climax of the third act of "Blue Jeans," the new play to be seen at the opera house on Monday, August 1. It is laid in a planning mill, where a jealous foreman put his employer on the slide leading to a big buzz saw in full motion, whence he is rescued by his wife, who breaks into the place just in time. It has not been unusual for audiences to rise en masse at the close of this episode and cheer until every participant of the scene is brought before the curtain.

Cucumber in a Bottle.

James C. Douglass shows a cucumber pickle which was grown in a bottle in the year 1887 when he was a mere boy at his father's home in Pennsylvania. He was playing around the cucumber vines and noticing a cucumber just forming he inserted it in the neck of the bottle, without thinking or knowing what the result would be. Two or three days later he discovered the cucumber had grown and almost filled the bottle.

He was surprised beyond measure and took it to the house and his father had the bottle filled with alcohol. From that day to this the cucumber was preserved, and by renewing the alcohol every three or four years it is as solid as the day it was plucked from the vines.—Memphis (Mo.) Revelle.

Announcements of the wedding of Wm. Hall and Miss Frances Campbell, which occurred at Minneapolis on July 19th, have been received in this city, and the newly married couple will be at home, 1719 Queen avenue north after Aug. 1st. Miss Campbell was formerly a resident of this city.

In our next issue on the third page will begin the publication of a serial story entitled "For God and the Czar," and will have special reference to the treatment of the Jews in Russia. A graphic and true description will be given of one of the most extraordinary places on the face of the earth. We refer to the terrible prison of the Siberian coast, in a part of the track of Navigation. The story will be intensely interesting.

Blueberry Veterans.

The St. Paul Globe says: The members of the state executive and the state militia who participated in quelling the uprising of the Indians at Brainerd July 25, 1878, held a reunion at the Metropolitan hotel, under the name of the reunion of the Blueberry war. The occasion was the lynching of two half-breeds, who had murdered Mary McArthur. The half-breeds were hung to a limb of a pine tree in the streets of Brainerd which was then a frontier town. The Indians threatened an uprising to avenge the death of the half-breed. The sheriff of Crow Wing county appealed to Gov. Austin for protection, and he ordered Companies A, B and D of the state guards to the scene. The reunion last night was gotten up for the participants in the event, which happily resulted in no fighting. There was a goodly company gathered to participate in the reunion. The dining room at the Metropolitan hotel, decorated with flowers and plants, the first regiment flag and a stand of muskets used on the occasion. One or two of the gray uniforms used at that time also were exhibited. An appetizing menu was served, while the ex-soldiers recounted incidents of the past twenty years or talked of the events of the war that was named, as Lieut. Cochran said, in the newspaper reports. He said no Indians were seen by the guards, except a few squaws, who came into the town to sell blueberries. He regretted that he had not earned the right to wear the blue or the bronze button, but was proud of his experience in the Blueberry war. He mentioned the scenes of camp life, and how he had to send orders to the dance houses to get enough men to stand guard. And how the guard house was frequently emptied by means of a key to the back door that one of the soldiers kept ready to release the men placed therein. He spoke of the tame skunk that was chained to a tent pole and of other incidents of the camp. A number of pictures were exhibited, among them a photograph of the two half-breeds hanging to a pine tree in the street of Brainerd.

Drowned White Bathing.

News was brought into the city on Monday morning that Jack Donahue had been drowned in Hubert lake on Sunday afternoon but that his body had not been recovered. Coroner Bain was requested to go to the scene by A. Lessard, for whom the victim had been working in a tie camp, and after several hours dragging his body was found at the bottom of the lake in about fifteen feet of water. An inquest was not necessary, and the body was brought into the city and buried. It seems that on Sunday afternoon Donahue told some of his fellow workers that he was going to the lake for a bath and solicited them to go along but owing to the extreme heat they declined and he went alone. As he did not return a search was made for him but nothing could be found except his clothing which was on a log near the water. He was 30 years of age, unmarried, and his relatives live somewhere in Michigan.

The Deadly Gun.

On Monday forenoon Matt Andrews, an 11-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Andrews, fatally shot himself while handling a 22-caliber revolver. Medical assistance was immediately called but an examination showed that the lad had a very small chance of recovering from the wound which was in the abdomen, the ball having passed nearly through his body. Everything possible was done but he died at nine o'clock the same evening. The funeral was held yesterday morning from the Catholic church, Rev. Father Lynch officiating.

Is It Leopold Pepin?

Somewhat of a sensation was caused here this morning by the announcement that one of the log-sorters at work on the river for the Pine Tree Lumber company had found the body of a boy in a badly decomposed condition, in the water. A visit to the scene showed that the report was exaggerated as all that had been found was a bunch of hair and a bone which might have come from the arm of a boy. Dr. Fortier has gone up to examine the find, as it may be that the decomposed mess is the remains of the 8-year-old boy of Brainerd, named Leopold Pepin, son of Paul Pepin, who was drowned in the Mississippi at that place Sunday, May 15.—Little Falls Transcript.

Fire in a Livery Barn.

The department was called out on Tuesday noon by an alarm turned in from Chas. Moore's livery stable in the Gray building on Laurel street. The origin of the fire was unknown and when discovered by Mr. Mooers was flaming up the chute near the front end of the stable to the loft which was filled with hay and by the time water was turned on the entire upper story was a mass of flames inside and it looked as though the building must be destroyed. But good work by the firemen soon began to tell and it was put out with no damage to the lower part of the building excepting a removed drenching. Everything was removed from the stable and Mr. Mooers' loss will be slight, but the building was damaged to quite an extent which was covered by insurance.

Mrs. Sam. Parker and children left Wednesday evening for Sharon, Wis., where they will visit during the coming month.

What promises to be one of the best attractions of the season will be given at the opera house next Thursday evening. Lincoln J. Carter's magnificent scenic production, the "Fast Mail." This is said to be a melodrama of more than ordinary merit while the scenic and mechanical effects equal anything that has ever been given in this city. There is a representation of an engine room on a Mississippi steamer, showing the furnace under the boilers in active operation. A realistic train of cars shoots across the stage with wonderful effect. The scene representing the Niagara Falls is said to challenge criticism and beggars description. The moonlight on the Falls, and the roaring of the plunging waters, the mist arising from the seething current make the scene as realistic a one as it would be possible to make it. The play has an absorbing plot and the lines are all strong.

A Pure Baking Powder.

A baking powder that can be depended upon to be free from lime and alum is a desideratum in these days of adulterated food. So far as can be judged from the official reports, the "Royal" seems to be the only yet found by chemical analyses to be entirely without one or the other of these substances, and absolutely pure. This, it is shown, results from the exclusive use by its manufacturers of cream of tartar specially refined and prepared by patent processes which totally remove all impurities. The cost of this chemically pure cream of tartar is much greater than any other, and it is used in no baking powder except the "Royal," the manufacturers of which control the patents under which it is refined.

Dr. Edward G. Love, formerly analytical chemist for the U. S. Government, who made the analyses for the New York State Board of Health in their investigation of baking powders, and whose intimate knowledge of the ingredients of all those sold in this market enables him to speak authoritatively, says of the purity, wholesomeness and superior quality of the "Royal":

Prof. Love's tests, and the recent official tests by both the United States and Canadian Governments, show the Royal Baking Powder to be superior to all others in strength and leavening power. It is not only the most economical in use, but makes the purest, finest flavored and most wholesome food.

Mrs. Sam. Parker and children left Wednesday evening for Sharon, Wis., where they will visit during the coming month.

What promises to be one of the best attractions of the season will be given at the opera house next Thursday evening. Lincoln J. Carter's magnificent scenic production, the "Fast Mail." This is said to be a melodrama of more than ordinary merit while the scenic and mechanical effects equal anything that has ever been given in this city. There is a representation of an engine room on a Mississippi steamer, showing the furnace under the boilers in active operation. A realistic train of cars shoots across the stage with wonderful effect. The scene representing the Niagara Falls is said to challenge criticism and beggars description. The moonlight on the Falls, and the roaring of the plunging waters, the mist arising from the seething current make the scene as realistic a one as it would be possible to make it. The play has an absorbing plot and the lines are all strong.

Or C. H. PAINE & CO., Brainerd.

The most startling scene ever put on the American stage is climax of the third act of "Blue Jeans," the new play to be seen at the opera house on Monday, August 1. It is laid in a planning mill, where a jealous foreman put his employer on the slide leading to a big buzz saw in full motion, whence he is rescued by his wife, who breaks into the place just in time. It has not been unusual for audiences to rise en masse at the close of this episode and cheer until every participant of the scene is brought before the curtain.

Cucumber in a Bottle.

James C. Douglass shows a cucumber pickle which was grown in a bottle in the year 1857 when he was a mere boy at his father's home in Pennsylvania. He was playing around the cucumber vines and noticing a cucumber just forming he inserted it in the neck of the bottle, without thinking or knowing what the result would be. Two or three days later he discovered the cucumber had grown and almost filled the bottle.

He was surprised beyond measure and took it to the house and his father had the bottle filled with alcohol. From that day to this the cucumber was preserved, and by removing the alcohol every three or four years it is as solid as the day it was plucked from the vine.—Memphis (Mo.) Revelle.

M. PASTER is special and personal facilities for investigating the cholera now. He has it himself, in a mild form.

Pinching is said to be an effective and harmless beautifier of the complexion. There is an exception to every rule, and the pinch of poverty is the exception to this one.

M. PASTER, the celebrated explorer and discoverer in the field of medicine, knows more about cholera today than he ever knew before. He is conversant from a mild attack of the genuine Asiatic article.

It will cost $20 to get a seat to see John L. Sullivan knock Corbett out, and it is not sure that Sullivan can do it. Considerable knocking will be done, whoever succeeds.

In Tokio, Japan, there are more than eight hundred bathtubs, in which a bath can be had for one cent. This is the cheapest kind of washing for people.

Aaron Strickland, an Indiana man, was bitten by a copperhead snake, and the snake died within half an hour. Aaron was drunk, and it is supposed the liquor in his system poisoned the snake.

The public libraries of all Europe contain 21,000,000 volumes, while America's free libraries have 50,000,000. This is the best result that could be given to the pet theory that Europe is more of a literary country than ours.

CHROMATOPIDIOSIS is the medical term for color blindness, and statistics show that men are much more chromato-psidiotically inclined than women. A man invariably succumbs to hopeless chromatopidiosis when he tries to catch ribbontide.

A PAPER in New Jersey lately day printed an account of the discovery of "the lifeless corpse of an unknown dead man." For a sample of murdering the "King's English" this takes the bakery.

CAPT. ALVIN. HALL of Deering Me., has a pair of mittens made from his wife's hair. He probably derives a sort of second-hand pleasure from viciously pulling those mittens on and off.

MERELY because a Des Moines jailer has been charging the city at the rate of 10 meals per day for the board of prisoners, he is accused of murder, and is threatened with prosecution. Genius is seldom properly appreciated in this cold calculating world of ours.

A FRENCHMAN in Lynn, having been staked in the eye with an umbrella handle a wound three inches deep, it would seem that those useful articles should hereafter be included in the ordinances which prohibit the carrying of dangerous weapons.

THERE is a subdued and touching pathos in the vocabulary of a Kansas editor, who winds up the affairs of the Lane County Farmer as follows: "With malice toward none and charity for all, I retire from the publication of this paper, and am ready for a soft job in the harvest field."

A writer commenting upon the recent proceedings at the several political conventions remarks that the only contention among women toward greater participation in politics. But it is not a patching to the movement among women toward the literary stores just before Easter.

HENRY WARD BEECHER's widow says the great Brooklyn preacher wrote but one poem and refused to let Robert Bonner print it in the Ledger in spite of an offer of $5,000 for it. It was written in Beecher's college days at Amherst, the good lady says, and contained about as much poetry as there is in "Jack and Jill."

NATURE is evidently disposed to assist in retarding the flow of gold from the United States to Europe. Cholera, volcanic eruptions and avalanches must soon have their effect in checking the summer exodus of tourists and tourists' birds who have already reached the continent to whither their way homeward.

BARBESS BURDET COURTS is now restored to the friendship of Queen Victoria. At one time the relations existing between her majesty and Lady Burdet-Courts were extremely cordial, but at the time of the lady's marriage they became somewhat strained, as the queen strongly disapproved of the step.

PARTIES concerned are beginning to squirm a little over the question of paying the bill likely to result from the killing of the Pinkertons at Homestead. An attempt is being made to show that the Pinkertons are deceived as to the nature of the business in which they were expected to engage.

After the execution of the late John A. McArthur, the charge of murder was taken up along to assist in a belated Fourth of July celebration.

THE death of Kate Castleton will cause genuine regret among her many admirers. She made great sensation when she first came to this pretty country some years ago with very pretty songs and bewitching manners. Her sphere was not a very exalted one from a purely artistic standpoint, but she was able to please many thousands who preferred her work to that of more pretentious artists.

In our next issue on the third page will begin the publication of a serial story entitled "For God and the Czar," and will have special reference to the treatment of the Jews in Russia. A graphic and true description will be given of one of the most extraordinary places on the face of the earth. We refer to the terrible prison of the Siberian coast, in a part of the track of Navigation. The story will be intensely interesting.

Blueberry Veterans.

The St. Paul Globe says: The members of the state militia who participated in quelling the uprising of the Indians at Brainerd, July 25, 1872, held a reunion at the Metropolitan hotel, under the name of the reunion of the Blueberry war. The occasion was the lynching of two half-breeds, who had murdered Mary McArthur. The half-breeds were hung to a limb of a pine tree that stood in the street of Brainerd, which was then a frontier town. The Indians threatened an uprising to avenge the death of the half-breed. The sheriff of Crow Wing county appealed to Gov. Ames for protection, and he ordered Companies A, B and D of the state guards to the rescue. The reunion last night was gotten up for the participants in the event, which happily resulted in no fighting. There was a goodly company gathered to participate in the reunion. The dining room at the Metropolitan was decorated with flowers and plants, the first request of the flag and a star and muskets used on the occasion. One or two of the gray uniforms worn at that time also were exhibited. An appetizing menu was served, while the ex-soldiers of the war of the past twenty years or talked of the events of the war that was named, as Lieut. Cochran said, by the newspaper reporters. He said no Indians were seen by the guards, except a few squaws, who came into the town to sell blueberries. He regretted that he had not earned the right to wear the blue or the bronze button, but was proud of his experience in the Blueberry war. He mentioned the scenes of camp life, and how he had to send orders to the dance houses to get enough men to stand guard, and how the guards were frequently emptied by means of a key to the back door that one of the soldiers kept ready to release the men placed therein. He spoke of the tame skunk that was chained to a tent pole and of other incidents of the camp. A number of pictures were exhibited, among them a photograph of the two half-breeds hanging to a pine tree in the street of Brainerd.

Drowned While Bathing.

News was brought into the city on Monday morning that Jack Donahue had been drowned in Hubert lake on Sunday afternoon but that his body had not been recovered. Coroner Bain was requested to go to the scene by A. Lessard, for whom the victim had been working in a tie camp, and after several hours dragging his body was found at the bottom of the lake in about fifteen feet of water. An inquest was not necessary, and the body was brought into the city and buried. It seems that on Sunday afternoon Donahue told some of his fellow workers that he was going to the lake for a bath and solicited them to go along but owing to the extreme heat they declined and he went alone. As he did not return a search was made for him but nothing could be found except his clothing which was on a log near the water. He was 30 years of age, unmarried, and his relatives live somewhere in Michigan.

The Deadly Gun.

On Monday forenoon Matt Andrews, an 11-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Andrews, fatally shot himself while handling a 22-calibre revolver. Medical assistance was immediately called but an examination showed that the lad had a very slim chance of recovering from the wound which was in the abdomen, the ball having passed nearly through his body. Everything possible was done but he died at nine o'clock the same evening. The funeral was held yesterday morning from the Catholic church, Rev. Father Lynch officiating.

Is It Leopold Pepin?

Somewhat of a sensation was caused here this morning by the announcement that one of the log-sorters at work on the river for the Pine Tree Lumber company had found the body of a boy in a badly decomposed condition, in the water. A visit to the scene showed that the report was exaggerated as all that had been found was a bunch of hair and a bone which might have come from the arm of a boy. Dr. Fortier has gone up to examine the find, as it may be that the decomposed mess is the remains of the 8-year-old boy of Brainerd, named Leopold Pepin, son of Paul Pepin, who was drowned in the Mississippi at that place Sunday, May 15.—Little Falls Transcript

Fire in a Livery Barn.

The department was called out on Tuesday noon by an alarm turned in from Chas. Moore's livery stable in the Gray building on Laurel street. The origin of the fire was unknown and when discovered by Mr. Mooers was flaming up the chute near the front end of the stable to the loft which was filled with hay and by the time water was turned on the entire upper story was a mass of flames inside and it looked as though the building must be destroyed. But good work by the firemen soon began to tell and it was put out with no damage to the lower part of the building excepting a thorough drenching. Everything was removed from the stable and Mr. Moore's loss will be slight, but the building was damaged to quite an extent which was covered by insurance.

Mrs. Sam. Parker and children left Wednesday evening for Sharon, Wis., where they will visit during the coming month.

What promises to be one of the best attractions of the season will be given at the opera house next Thursday evening. Lincoln J. Carter's magnificent scenic production, the "Fast Mail." This is said to be a melodrama of more than ordinary merit while the scenic and mechanical effects equal anything that has ever been given in this city. There is a representation of an engine room on a Mississippi steamer, showing the furnace under the boilers in active operation. A realistic train of cars shoots across the stage with wonderful effect. The scene representing the Niagara Falls is said to challenge criticism and beggars description. The moonlight on the Falls, and the roaring of the plunging waters, the mist arising from the seething current, make the scene as realistic as one as it would be possible to make it. The play has an absorbing plot and the lines are all strong.

McElroy Fights Griffin.

There was quite a crowd at the opera house Saturday evening to witness the sparring match between Jim McElroy, of Brainerd, and Jimmy Griffin, of St. Paul. Both men had been in the city during the week and considerable interest had been aroused among their admirers. To work the crowd up to the proper pitch and give them their money's worth several sets of were had between some of the local boxers, would-be and otherwise. A go between Gene Hamlin and Billy Campbell started the ball rolling and contests between Frank Hood and Arcule Burke, Jas. Connors and Seraphim Roy and Alfred Brown and George Hamlin. Some of them were very lively and produced heaps of fun for the audience, the men on the stage seeming to enjoy it fully as much as anybody else.

The main interest, of course, was centered in the contest between McElroy and Griffin, which was called by Twombly at 10:15. He stated that it would be under the Revised Marquis of Queensbury rules, would be six rounds, and the gloves being produced were examined by chief Roy and found to be 8 ounces and all right as regards weight. B. Burton was chosen as referee. Ed. Hirt, of St. Cloud, was behind Griffin while W. A. Twombly acted as second for McElroy. At the end of the sixth round the referee declared the contest a draw and as both men expressed themselves as satisfied the crowd should be. All in all, it was a pretty exhibition sparring match, with none of the usual brutal accompaniments.—Little Falls Transcript

The Calhoun Opera company will appear at the opera house on Wednesday evening, August 3d, and the News says:

The Calhoun Opera company played "Said Pasha" for the third time at the Lyceum last evening to an enthusiastic audience, and a large one, considering that already two performances of the same piece have been given. The company has caught the popular heart, sure enough.

Ask for the new drink, "The Professor's Soda," for headaches and mental exertion. Dispensed with the latest, "Artesian Soda Water." Johnson's Pharmacy.

Claim Agent Heath is in the city to-day on business.

H. C. Stivers attended a democratic blowout at Motley last evening.

Don't fail to see the Fast Mail at the opera house next Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Ingersoll returned to their home at Plover, Wis., on Monday.

Miss Helen Crocker wishes those who desire lessons in elocution to call, during the first week in August, at the residence of C. M. Pond's, corner of Fifth and Kingwood streets.

The bicycle riders who advertised to show on Sunday at the fair grounds were compelled to change their date to Saturday owing to public sentiment. Brainerd is getting to be quite a moral town.

Mr. G. W. Bissar and Miss Annie Thiery were married on Wednesday, July 27, by Rev. Father Lynch. Mr. and Mrs. Bissar are spending their honeymoon at Wadena and on their return will make Brainerd their home.

Mrs. Fannie L. Ames, of Minneapolis, state organizer for W. C. T. U., will lecture in the Baptist church, of this city, on the evening of August 3d. All are cordially invited. No admission fee. A collection will be taken.

In things theatrical Brainerd is getting to be a hummer. To-day's arrival of two distinguished gentlemen, Mr. J. Wesley Rosequest, proprietor of two large New York theatres, and Mr. Joseph Arthur, the author of "Blue Jeans" and "Still Alarm." These gentlemen came from New York to have an opportunity of witnessing a performance of Blue Jeans given in one of the "one night stands." After being shown the stage at the opera house they assured Manager Alexander that Blue Jeans can and will be given in its entirety on Monday next. The gentlemen will spend the next few days in fishing and visiting the various lake resorts in this vicinity until the arrival of the company.

A Pure Baking Powder.

A baking powder that can be depended upon to be free from lime and alum is a desideratum in these days of adulterated food. So far as can be judged from the official reports, the "Royal" seems to be the only one yet found by chemical analyses to be entirely without one or the other of these substances, and absolutely pure. This, it is shown, results from the exclusive use by its manufacturers of cream of tartar specially refined and prepared by patent processes which totally remove all impurities. The cost of this chemically pure cream of tartar is much greater than any other, and it is used in no baking powder except the "Royal," the manufacturers of which control the patents under which it is refined.

Dr. Edward G. Love, formerly analytical chemist for the U. S. Government, who made the analyses for the New York State Board of Health in their investigation of baking powders, and whose intimate knowledge of the ingredients of all those sold in this market enables him to speak authoritatively, says of the purity, wholesomeness and superior quality of the "Royal":

Prof. Love's tests, and the recent official tests by both the United States and Canadian Governments, show the Royal Baking Powder to be superior to all others in strength and leavening power. It is not only the most economical in use, but makes the purest, finest flavored and most wholesome food.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder
ABSOLUTELY PURE
